To Whom It May Concern:

This letter is a quick-reference guide for understanding how Residential Habilitation services are billed under Florida's APD iBudget Waiver. It is intended to help group home providers and families feel confident about daily attendance tracking and the monthly vs. daily billing threshold.

We put this together after researching the relevant state documents and wanted to share what we found so that everyone involved in caring for our family member is on the same page.

HOW RESIDENTIAL HABILITATION BILLING WORKS

There are two ways a group home provider can bill for Residential Habilitation services:

1. Monthly Rate -- Used when the individual is present at the home for 24 or more days in a calendar month. The provider bills one flat monthly rate regardless of whether the person was there 24, 25, 28, or 30 days.
2. Daily Rate -- Used when the individual is present for 23 or fewer days in a calendar month. The provider bills the daily rate multiplied by the number of days the person was actually present, submitted as one unit at the end of the month.

This 24-day threshold is established in the APD/AHCA iBudget Provider Rate Tables, which list both "Day" and "Month" as billing units for each level of Residential Habilitation. The enforcement of this threshold is documented in the Qlarant Service Specific Record Review for Residential Habilitation (Standard), which is the compliance review tool used by the state.

Specifically, Standard #9 of the Qlarant review states:

"Determine the number of days rendered. If less than 24, determine if the daily rate was billed in lieu of the monthly rate. Day rate multiplied by the number of days present billed as one unit at the end of the month is acceptable."

And the corresponding compliance failure is:

"Provider billed the monthly rate when less than 24 days of service were rendered."

WHAT COUNTS AS A "DAY"

This is the most important part, and it's good news: the standard for what counts as a "day" is simple and straightforward.

Standard #1 of the Qlarant review specifies that Daily Attendance Logs must contain only two things:

- Name of the individual
- Date of service

That's it. There is no requirement to record hours, start times, end times, or duration. The review protocol explicitly notes that "Time period" is not a required component on Daily Attendance Logs for Residential Habilitation.

What this means in practice: if the individual is present at the group home at any point during a calendar day, that date should be recorded on the Daily Attendance Log. It counts as one day of service. Whether the person was there for 2 hours or 20 hours on that date, it is one billable day.

The state reviews compliance by comparing dates on the Daily Attendance Log against claims data. They check that the dates match -- they do not check how many hours the person was present on any given date.

HOW FAMILY VISITS AFFECT BILLING -- TWO COMMON EXAMPLES

One of the most common questions is whether family visits on weekends affect the group home's ability to bill. The answer depends on whether the individual is present at the home at any point on each calendar day. Here are two real scenarios:

Example 1: Saturday Morning Pickup, Sunday Afternoon Dropoff

A family member picks the individual up from the group home on Saturday morning and brings her back on Sunday afternoon.

Friday:	At the home all day	= COUNTS
Saturday:	At the home in the morning before pickup	= COUNTS
Sunday:	Returned to the home in the afternoon	= COUNTS

Result: Zero missed days. The individual was present at the home at some point on both Saturday and Sunday, so both dates are recorded on the Daily Attendance Log. Even though the individual spent most of the weekend away, every calendar day includes some time at the home.

If this happens every weekend (4 times per month), the individual is present all 30 (or 28) days of the month. The provider bills the monthly rate with no issue.

Example 2: Friday Afternoon Pickup, Sunday Evening Dropoff

A family member picks the individual up on Friday afternoon and brings her back on Sunday evening.

Friday:	At the home before pickup	= COUNTS
Saturday:	With family all day, never at the home	= DOES NOT COUNT
Sunday:	Returned to the home in the evening	= COUNTS

Result: One missed day per visit (Saturday). The individual was not present at the home at any point on Saturday, so that date cannot be recorded on the Daily Attendance Log.

If this happens every weekend (4 times per month), the individual misses 4 Saturdays. In a 30-day month, that is 26 days present -- still above the 24-day threshold, so the provider bills the monthly rate. In a 28-day month (February), that is 24 days present -- right at the threshold, and the provider can still bill the monthly rate.

The key takeaway: even with regular extended weekend visits, the provider will almost always meet the 24-day threshold as long as the individual is at the home for some portion of both the pickup day and the dropoff day.

WHY THIS MATTERS

For months where the individual is present 24 or more days, the provider is entitled to bill the monthly rate, which is financially more favorable than 24 individual daily rates. Every day of presence counts, including days where the individual may have been at an Adult Day Training program during the day but returned to the home, or days where the individual visited with family for part of the day but was at the home for part of it.

Accurate attendance logging protects the provider in the event of a compliance review, and it ensures the provider is being properly compensated for the care they are delivering. The examples above show that regular family visits -- even extended weekend visits -- are fully compatible with monthly billing as long as attendance is logged correctly.
